Directed by George Bamber, 2005, USA 88 min

At 26 Ethan Green struggles with a life of unsuccessful dates. His dilemma? Steadfastly looking for his dream date without his ability to commit. Beginning as a screwball comedy and ending in over-the-top farce, this hilarious film answers the questions that plague many of us. Do gay Republicans deserve happiness? Is there anyone out there who doesn't lie on his online profile? What does it take for a lesbian realtor to sell a house that everyone wants? From the first scene to the last you will be charmed by this incredible comedy!

5:45 p.m. Short film: PROM-troversy Directed by Leanna Creel, 2004, USA 12 min

Feature Film: LOVING ANNABELLE Directed by Katherine Brooks, 2005, USA 80 min

Continuing the legacy of lesbian schoolgirl films like Madchen in Uniforms and The Children's Hour comes a new film equal to those classics that creates a riveting romantic tale of forbidden student-teacher love with less tragedy, more humor, and greater fulfillment. When a sexy, rebellious new girl arrives on campus, she releases buried passions with her beautiful teacher forcing the teacher to unleash her repressed desires. LOVING ANNABELLE keeps us in suspense until a conclusion you might not anticipate.

8:00 p.m. Short film: Available Men Directed by David Dean Bottrell, 2005, USA 15 min

Feature Film: BOY CULTURE Directed by Q. Allan Brocka, 2006, USA 87 min

A gay hustler named X, the hunky hero of BOY CULTURE, is the consummate professional: up for almost anything that pays and fastidiously careful with his heart. Through a roller-coaster ride of twists and turns, X realizes that his past failures help him understand his own complexities and leave him hopeful and happy to have loved, lost, and lived life to the fullest. Writer-director Brocka has been thrilling PPLFF audiences since its inception (Rick and Steve series, Eating Out). With its mix of gorgeous stars, irony, humor, pathos, and sexiness, BOY CULTURE lives up to the exceptional films we've come to expect from this marvelous young gay director.
